The point of the hill south of the Amarillas mill, overlooking Primavera, is a busy scene, where more than 100 men are engaged in making the necessary excavations for the new cyanide plant. When the grading is completed, which will be in about two weeks, there will be laid a solid cement foundation for the vats and machinery, construction of which will require several months. Mr. J. F. Morris, who has recently arrived from Salt Lake, is in charge of the force now at work; Mr. J. Frier, from South Africa, is superintendent of construction; Mr. Jas. Johnson, also from South Africa, having been long with the Butters Co. over there, is general manager; and Mr. J. E. Clennel, a scientific gentleman of wide attainments and world-wide fame, is the chemist in charge.

The cyanide tests with the Butters method having proved successful Mr. Butters has contracted with the Grand Central Co. to handle daily 400 tons of tailings—200 tons directly from the mill, and 200 tons from the tailings dump, in which are many thousands of tons with an average value of $5 gold. As the process takes out the gold completely, at a small cost, there will be a saving of a vast amount of money. Work of excavation for the new plant is in progress, at the point of the hill beyond the Amarillas mill, overlooking Primavera. Thirty large tanks will be erected, each to hold 130 tons of tailings, and an engine and boiler, with connections, etc., to work the agitators in the tanks, which will keep the tailings constantly stirred. Instead of upon zinc as in other processes, the Butters process precipitates the gold upon lead sheets.

Two Americans Killed by Yaqui Indians.

On July 13th Messrs. Remley and Miller of Hermosillo, the former of the firm of Remley & Lewis, and the latter a well known photographer, left this city in a sulky for a trip to Alamos from whence they were going to secure horses and proceed to the Sierra Madre mountains, where Mr. Remley had a prospect. They arrived at Torin on the day of the 20th and left on the afternoon of the 21st, intending to camp out that night near a small town named Bacum. After being out a few miles from Torin it is not positively known whether they were on the road or in camp it is presumed that they were camping for the night, when they were attacked by Yaquis and killed in a most horrible manner. Their arms and legs were bound with a rope they had used for a stake rope, and after that their hands were cut off inch by inch and their feet the same way. Then with another rope they were strung up to a tree and were found hanging the next morning by a company of soldiers, the sulky being burnt and the horse shot to death. The bodies were either taken to Torin or Cocorit, it is not known yet to which place. At the time these gentlemen had several hundred dollars with them in paper money.

Mr. Miller was an old time Arizonian and a first-class photographer who had resided in Globe for years. He leaves no family.

Mr. Jack Remley was widely known and a better fellow was hard to find. He was for a long time messenger on the Sonora road, afterwards was Wells-Fargo agent at Hermosillo for a number of years. He leaves a wife and five children who reside here.

Since writing the above news has been received that Señor Aurelio Paredes, brother of Jose Maria Paredes, of the house of M. Gaxiola, had been killed by the Yaquis while in a boat with several others, the Indians shooting from the shore.
